

INDONESIA

- I. Based on latest unofficial returns (UP, 18 October) representing over 90 percent of the votes cast, strengths of the four major parties are:

	Percent	Vote
National Party	25.3	7,761,000
Masjumi	24.8	7,601,000
Mahdlatul Ulama (NU)	21.6	6,609,000
Communist Party	19.6	6,016,000
All Others	8.5	2,600,000
Total		30,587,000

- II. Parliamentary seats are so allocated in Indonesia that despite the National Party's lead, the Masjumi's majority in areas outside Java may give it slightly more seats than the National Party in the new parliament which will be convened early next year.

DOCUMENT NO. _____
NO CHANGE IN CLASS. ☐
☐ DECLASSIFIED
CLASS. CHANGED TO: TS / S C
NEXT REVIEW DATE: _____
AUTH: HR 70-2
DATE: _____ REVIEWER: _____

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

III. Seats will not be allocated until elections are completed and votes are officially counted.

A. Approximately 10 percent of the electorate in unprepared or dissident areas has not yet voted and another seven percent may be required to vote again in Central Java.

B. This may hold up official count and allocation of seats until after 29 November deadline set for completion of elections in all areas.